

To whom it may concern,

I support XM's ability to provide traffic and weather. I travel alot and use it often. It's available to me at the touch of a button not like tuning my car radio to a station and waiting for the station to do there traffic segment. When I go into another city I don't have to find a local station. I tune my XM radio to that city and have instant traffic and weather.

I love it.
